

Price list for black and red striped optical cables

Article Overview

A black and red striped optical cable can cost anywhere from $5 for a short pre-terminated patch cable to $6 per foot for bulk fiber optic cable, depending on type and length.

Pre-Terminated Patch Cables

For short, ready-to-use optical cables with black and red boots, prices are typically modest. For example, a 0.2-meter LC/U to LC/U single-mode fiber optic patch cable with red and black boots is available on Amazon, generally priced around $5-$10 per cable depending on the brand and fiber quality (Corning SMF-28 Ultra Single-Mode) . These cables are convenient for home or small office setups and come with factory-terminated connectors.

Bulk Fiber Optic Cable

If you are purchasing bulk fiber optic cable to cut and terminate yourself, prices vary based on fiber type, strand count, and jacket construction. Retail prices for single-mode fiber range from $1 to $6 per foot, while multimode fiber can cost $0.30 to $1 per foot for standard indoor riser-rated cables . Armored or plenum-rated cables for harsh environments or air-handling spaces can cost more, up to $5 per foot . Bulk black and red striped wire, such as TXL 18-gauge striped wire, is also available in large quantities, with pricing typically quoted per foot or per roll .

Factors Affecting Price

- Cable length: Longer cables increase total cost proportionally.
