

Price of fiber optic cable tubes

Article Overview

Fiber optic cable tubes range from around $0.25 per foot for basic PE/HDPE tubing to over $100 for 100-foot HDPE flexible conduits, with fiberglass multiducts priced on request.

HDPE and PE Tubing

Flexible HDPE (high-density polyethylene) conduits suitable for fiber optic cables are commonly sold in lengths of 100 feet. For example, a 2-inch diameter, 100-foot HDPE flexible corrugated tube costs approximately $100 at Home Depot, with slightly smaller diameters or different colors ranging from $97 to $100 per 100-foot section . These tubes are durable, solvent- and acid-resistant, and can be directly buried, making them ideal for outdoor fiber installations. Standard PE or HDPE guide tubes are also available in various diameters (7 mm to 110 mm) and lengths, with pricing typically provided upon request by suppliers like Maunt. These tubes are used for multiduct systems, protective casing, and guiding fiber optic cables in both indoor and outdoor applications .

Fiberglass Tubes

Fiberglass-reinforced tubes offer high strength, corrosion resistance, and long lifespan, making them suitable for harsh environments or repair work. They are available in multiduct configurations (2-way, 3-way, 5-way, 7-way, 24-way) and various diameters such as 7/4 mm and 14/10 mm. Pricing for these tubes is generally quoted on request, depending on the size, type, and quantity ordered . Delivery times can range from immediate to several weeks depending on stock and customization.
